Mark A. Lemley

Mark Lemley is the William H. Neukom Professor of Law at Stanford Law School, the Director of the Stanford Program in Law, Science and Technology, and the Director of Stanford's LLM Program in Law, Science and Technology. He teaches intellectual property, computer and Internet law, patent law, and antitrust. He is of counsel to the law firm of Kecker & Van Nest, where he litigates in the areas of antitrust, intellectual property and computer law. He is the author of six books (all in multiple editions) and 80 articles on these and related subjects, including the two-volume treatise IP and Antitrust. He has taught intellectual property law to federal and state judges at numerous Federal Judicial Center and ABA programs, has testified five times before Congress and numerous times before the California legislature, the Federal Trade Commission and the Antitrust Modernization Commission on patent, trade secret, antitrust and constitutional law matters, and has filed numerous amicus briefs before the U.S. Supreme Court, the California Supreme Court, and the federal circuit courts of appeals. He has been named California Lawyer's Attorney of the Year (2005), one of the 100 most influential lawyers in the nation by the National Law Journal (2006), one of the top 25 intellectual property lawyers in California (2003), one of the 100 most influential lawyers in California (2004 and 2005) by the Daily Journal, and one of the 500 leading lawyers in the country by Lawdragon Magazine. He has chaired or co-chaired more than 30 major conferences on antitrust, intellectual property and computer law, including Computers Freedom and Privacy '98.

Professor Lemley received his J.D. from Boalt Hall School of Law at the University of California at Berkeley, and his A.B. from Stanford University. In 2002 he was chosen Boalt's Young Alumnus of the Year. After graduating from law school, he clerked for Judge Dorothy Nelson on the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, and has practiced law in Silicon Valley with Brown & Bain and with Fish & Richardson. Until January 2000, he was the Marrs McLean Professor of Law at the University of Texas School of Law, and until June 2004 he was the Elizabeth Josslyn Boalt Chair in Law at the Boalt Hall School of Law, University of California at Berkeley.
